TODAY'S CHARTS & COMMENTARY

Offshore Gold and Silver Commentary:

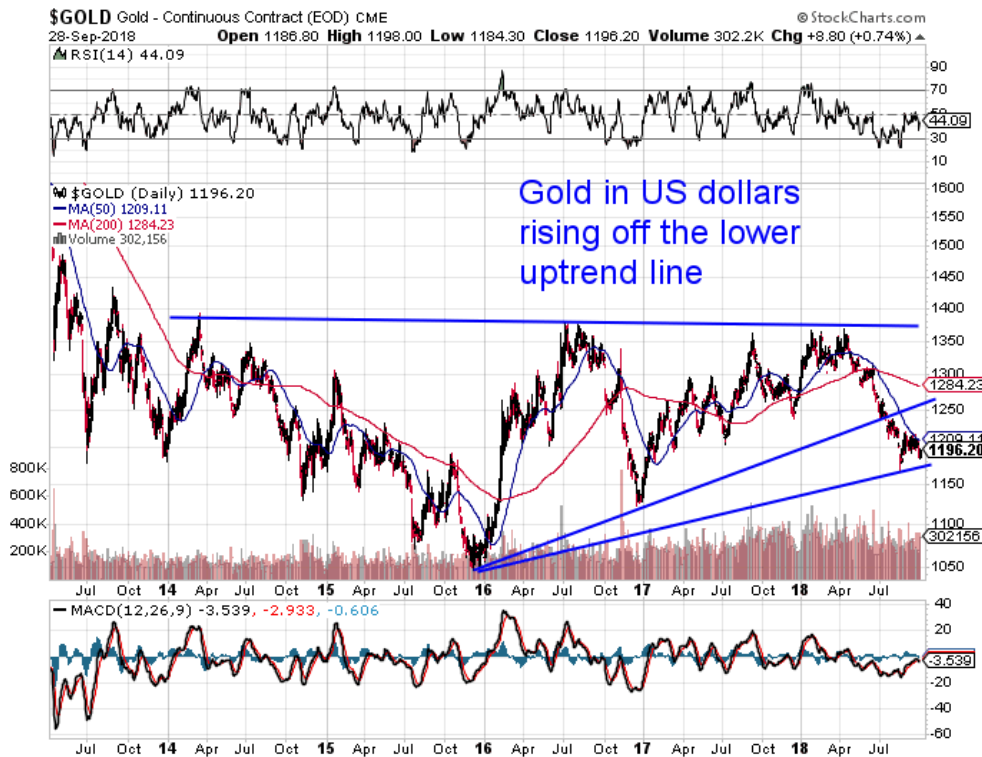

Over on Friday night on the offshore markets, gold in USD dollars gained around $9 to $1192.85 per ounce.

Silver rallied 40 cents to $14.68 per ounce.

Short Term Gold Chart in US Dollars

Gold in US dollars rising off the lower uptrend line.

A bottom may have formed around $1170, so possibly a higher low is in the process of taking shape as we speak.

Short Term Silver Chart in US Dollars

Silver in US dollars surging higher and rising out of the lower side of this falling wedge formation.

Gold and Silver Commentary in NZ Dollars:

Here in NZ with the kiwi dollar slightly higher on .6607, gold gained around $12 to $1805.43 per ounce. While silver gained around $19 to $714.37 per kilo, or in ounces up 59 cents to $22.22.

Short Term Gold Chart in NZ Dollars

Gold in NZD back over the $1800 mark, and more importantly holding above solid support around $1770 levels.

Buying anywhere below this 200 day moving average line is likely to be an excellent zone to take a position.

Long Term Gold Chart in NZ Dollars

NZ gold continues to have very solid support within this rising channel going back to 2014.

Short Term Silver Chart in NZ Dollars

Silver in NZ dollars climbing sharply higher off the higher uptrend line.

Long Term Silver Chart in NZ Dollars

NZ silver holding above major support lines that go all the way back to 2009.

So still in an excellent buying zone in the long term for physical silver at these lower levels.

Silver to Gold Ratio

The silver to gold ratio (how many ounces of silver to buy an ounce of gold) is lower at 81.25.

Near highs that have only been seen 4 times in the past 15 years. But history shows that with a ratio above 80, a large move higher in silver often follows.
